

Higher Education Division

Office Concepts integrates the latest furniture products, services and information available with new ideas in teaching and learning. We help to create educational environments that support the process, the technology, and the work that people do every day, whether that work is researching, learning, developing, managing, or administering.

Office Concepts has created a unique process for educational institutions that procures and manages furniture products and related services. Our product and design experts understand the business issues facing the field of education, including budget constraints and use of existing buying agreements.

We assist in all aspects of the project from planning, budgeting, and product selection to installation and post-project purchasing. Office Concepts can help you create sustainable, inspiring and innovative environments that foster learning and help to develop your most valuable asset, the student.

Some of our higher education clients include: Northwestern University, The University of Illinois at Chicago and Oakton Community College. We provide for the following areas:
